Our predictions

We hope it's not too late to make predictions for 2013. There were so many other issues to write about that these got put on the back burner.

The West Valley economy will continue growing and will do so at a faster rate than it has in the last quarter or half of 2012.

We're happy the Phoenix Coyotes will actually play hockey games again in Glendale. They will stay in Arizona and will help the Westgate area continue to prosper. The entertainment district is getting a boost from the Tanger Outlet Mall customers but will need the additional source of revenue from stadium activities.

At least two local municipalities will struggle with news of previously unreported problems in the running of those cities. We won't predict which ones.

Buckeye and Goodyear will have at least one big new economic development success this year.

The person who called in a bomb threat to Millennium High School will be caught and charged. Despite this, high school students will continue to make bad decisions in their use of phones and computers. Maybe teachers will as well. Somehow a few teenagers still don't understand the seriousness of such actions. Most do and they will continue to be instrumental in helping police solve such crimes.

High schools in the West Valley will win more state sports championships and either this year or next will earn another perfect score on the SAT tests.

Estrella Mountain Community College, especially the Buckeye campus, will continue to grow as more students stay home to start their higher education.

Traffic will get worse. None of the cities will make any effort to solve it by timing traffic lights. Frustrated motorists will continue to endanger others by running red lights.

Fuel mileage in new cars will rise but not enough to offset rising gas prices.

The drought won't end.

Jan Brewer will come to her senses and decide not to run for a third term as governor.

Some sort of action will take place to attempt to remove District 13 state representative Darin Mitchell who never will actually spend a night in the district. Either the state house will act to remove million who never will actually spend a night in the district. Either the state house will act to remove him or voters will attempt a recall.

We'll all get a little older and hopefully a little wiser.
